Nigel Cross has been a clinical perfusionist since commencing his training in 1979. With a career spanning 4 decades Nigel has worked in 6 centres in London over this period gathering experience in the provision and management of clinical perfusion services to both the adult and paediatric patient population.

Nigel has been accredited by the College of Clinical Perfusion Scientists (CCPS) and, in recognition of his experience, education and contribution to scientific research, has been awarded fellowship of the CCPS.

Retired from full time employment in May of this year, and now locum as and when required, Nigel feels lucky to still have a profession that he enjoys and continues to learn from.
