

Head of Clinical Perfusion Services – Royal Hobart Hospital

Work where it matters at Tasmanian Department of Health.

The whole world needs you.

With your significant skills and experience you can be a clinician anywhere,

What is different about Tasmania is our culture and lifestyle.

Why Tasmania?

This is a place of stunning natural beauty in every direction, from mountains to the sea. Where the difference lies in the small and special life experiences. You will replace your long commute with the pursuit of your passions and discover new ones in a place where people still make eye contact and look out for one another.

Why Tasmanian Health Service?

At work, you'll have access to world class services and facilities. Our smaller teams mean you can work closely with decision makers and connect with your team, colleagues and patients. You'll genuinely make a difference to where you live and work.

The Royal Hobart Hospital (RHH) is Tasmania's largest hospital, and the Cardiothoracic Surgical Unit within the RHH is the tertiary referral centre for all cardiothoracic surgery in Tasmania.

As the major clinical teaching and research centre, RHH works closely with the University of Tasmania and other institutions.

About you

You'll lead, educate others, participate in research, and provide clinical services and specialist activities in a collaborative and positive environment.

Your values-driven leadership will support like-minded people in multi-disciplinary teams to support the health and wellbeing of all in Tasmania. What is more important than that?

Some of our benefits

- Extensive salary packaging with excellent leave benefits
- 30% of base salary as Market Allowance
- On call and call back allowances
- Professional Development Allowance of up to $1000 per annum
- Relocation and accommodation assistance
- Culture and wellbeing programs including Fitness Passport

Our Commitment:

Respecting diversity is the foundation of everything that we do. This allows us to instil trust and collaborate through honest and fair communication and helps cultivate an environment of growth and innovation. We strongly encourage applicants from key communities including Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders, LGBTIQ+ people, and people living with disabilities.
